

The ARNOLD ARBORETUM of HARVARD UNIVERSITY

November 2026

Dear Friend,

The Arnold Arboretum is a place of connection. For 154 years, this museum of trees has connected plants and people. Free and open to everyone, 365 days a year, the Arboretum is a place where people come to learn, explore, find inspiration, and simply breathe.

At a time when scientific discovery and botanical collections are more important than ever, the Arboretum continues to advance knowledge, stewardship, and public engagement to help shape a more sustainable future. While economic pressures have required careful prioritization of our resources, our mission and ambitions remain strong as ever. The support of members and donors like you is essential to sustaining this momentum and ensuring we can continue to provide the scientific leadership, educational opportunities, and conservation impact our changing world demands.

Because the Arboretum is free and open to all, charitable support is essential to helping this extraordinary place thrive. Your support makes a difference in our museum of trees, which remains a vital center of scientific discovery and education. Together, we are investing in projects whose impact will be measured not merely in years, but in generations. We are deeply grateful for your partnership.

Continued...

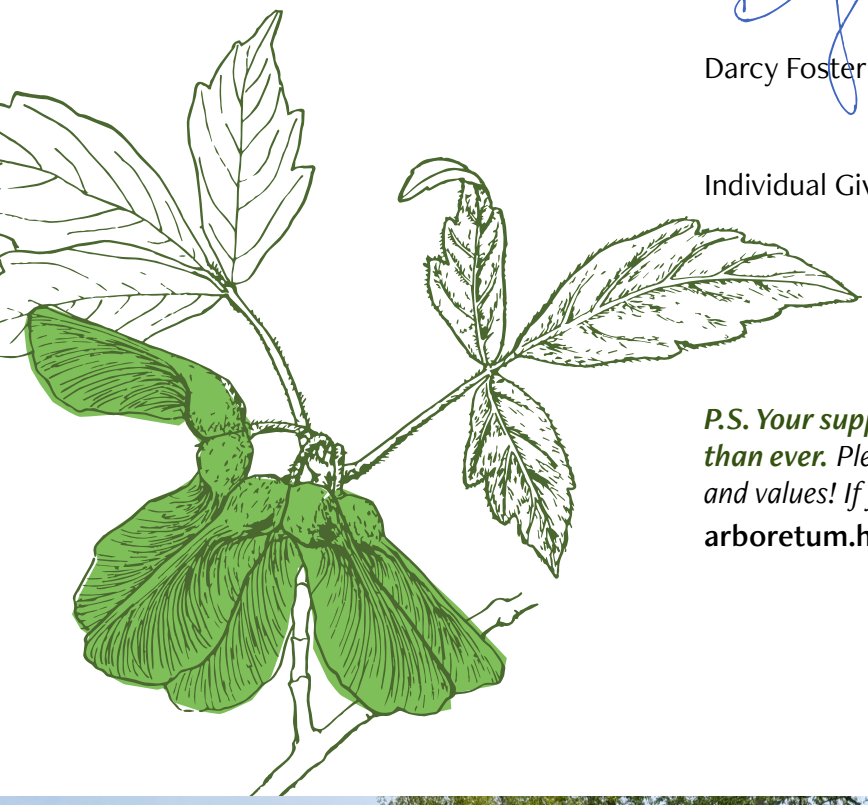

Your support can help us lead with strength during this time of global uncertainty. If you have questions about your past or future support, please contact me at darcyfoster@fas.harvard.edu or 617-384-0784.

With warm regards,

Darcy Foster

Individual Giving Associate

P.S. Your support of the Arnold Arboretum is more important than ever. Please consider a gift to help us stay true to our mission and values! If you would prefer to give online, please visit arboretum.harvard.edu/AnnualAppeal.

